Still, a major downside can be spotted immediately, apart from the interface that is slow to respond to the commands at times, more precisely the fact that most of the channels on the list are no longer available. Also, among those very few that seem to be working, there are pre-recorded tracks that have nothing to do with the actual live stream which should play when clicking on that station. The controls in Internet Radio for Tamil, Malayalam, Telegu, Kannada work, most of the time, but some of them are of no use when in the FM mode. On the whole, the entire experience appears to not worth the while taken to install and tray to make something function as it should, so at this stage of its development this application is sure to fail the expectations of most users.
